PURPOSE

Staff, students, and families at LSWW work together and learn from one another to engender a culture of high personal and professional standards. Students are the centre of decisions made at the school.

Wellbeing allows the body and mind to be healthy, learn, and grow. It involves self-awareness of core values, emotional regulation, and problem-solving skills. Wellbeing is the foundation for good decision-making and self-directed learning.

Students at LSWW understand that their world and their learning extend beyond their physical campus. We aim to prepare today's learners for tomorrow's world by modelling inclusiveness, practicing effective communication, respecting diversity, and meaningfully engaging in the world.

Physical environments affect wellbeing and should reflect the school community's shared values. LSWW facilities promote the Christian faith, healthy relationships and learning, co-curricular activity, sustainability, First Nations and multicultural perspectives, and safety.

Lutheran schools are a place of service. God works through individuals and the school to renew, inspire, and transform ministry to students, families, staff, and others both locally and globally. Each individual contributes to the school in the Lutheran context.
